

BILLY GOAT'S FUNERAL.
A Mortuary Proceeding Which Was as Novel as It Was Pathetic.
There is but one step from the sublime to the ridiculous, and an equal distance from the absurd to the pathetic. Children have little perception of the incongruities of life, and are not debarred from indulging in sentiment by any fear of appearing ridiculous to older eyes. A Hartford gentleman relates, in Golden Days, an incident in which this trait is strikingly illustrated. He says:

"I met, upon a hillside highway, a day or two since, a funeral procession. It was a strange funeral, too, and the corpse was quite as strange as the funeral team that drew the improvised hearse. Six little boys and three girls drew the hearse, and the corpse in the vehicle was that of a billy-goat. I asked the largest boy, the leader, if he was the foreman of the fire company, and he answered:

"No, sir; we're a funeral."
"The strange answer induced me to look into the wagon, and its contents revealed to my sight the first dead goat that I had ever seen. The little undertaker, who had owned Billy, enlightened me when he said: "Billy was a good goat, and me and Billy used to have lots of fun in old times."
"A goat's funeral was so novel a mortuary proceeding that I accepted the invitation to become one of the mourners and follow the little wagon drawn by the children up the hillside, through the winding lane over the common to the grave appointed for the last resting-place of all that was mortal of poor Billy."

"I have seldom seen a more decorous observance by grown people at the graveside, when the clouds hid from sight all that was material, than was observed by these children in the burial of their dead friend, who, doubtless, had often drawn them all in jolly good-fellowship around and about the highways and hillsides in the same wagon which had carried Billy to his last resting-place. His grave was not long nor was it deep, but it was deep enough to cover him well, and in it he was gently placed and a few spadefuls of dirt carefully deposited upon Billy's inanimate form."

"A little more ceremony and the grave was covered, each child, as the procession moved away, turning to say: 'Good-bye, Billy!' I stooped and picked a daisy from among its kith and kin, which whitened the field all around and about, and laid it on the grave as my offering—not to a dead goat, but to the good friend of a little boy who loved him well enough to give him a decent burial, and bore testimony to his good traits in the simple tribute: 'Billy was a good goat.'"

"As I walked away a little song sparrow, or perhaps it was a wren, which had been nervously hopping about on the bush-tops a few yards away, flew down upon the new-made grave and burst out with a rapturous song, and flooded the air with melody. Ah, well, I thought, as I wandered down the hillside, there isn't any use for goat heaven when the grave of a gray old Billy is watered by the tears of children, and the funeral ceremony ends with the anthem of such a chorister."

PREMATURE BURIAL:
The Awful Possibility Made Evident by a Personal Experience.

In view of the many strange nervous, cataleptic and kindred conditions which are so common nowadays it is not unreasonable to call attention to the possibilities, which would seem occasionally to occur, of premature burial.

A narrow escape of this was recently communicated direct to the writer.

The lady was the wife of the medical officer attached to the 11th regiment; she was stationed at—Island, where at the age of twenty-eight she was safely confined. Shortly after this she was walking out with an attendant when she was taken suddenly ill with a painful spasm of the heart—what appears to have been an attack of angina pectoris—and was conveyed indoors and propped up with pillows, suffering great pain, and although medical attendance was summoned, nothing was of avail, and she died—at least in the opinion of those around her. It was the custom there to bury at sundown any one who died during the day.

She would never have lived to tell the story but for an accident, which happened in this way: Her nurse, who was much attached to her, was stroking her face and the muscles of her jaw, and presently declared she heard a sound of breathing. Medical assistance was summoned and the mirror test applied, but the surface was undimmed. Then, to make sure, they opened a vein in each arm, but no blood flowed. No limb responded to stimulus, and they declared that the nurse was mistaken, and that the lady was dead beyond doubt.

But the nurse persisted in her belief and in her attentions, and did succeed in establishing a sign of life. Then mustard applications to her feet and to the back of her neck, and burnt feathers applied to her nostrils, which she remembers burning her nose, completed her return to consciousness.—Tocsin.

The Food Value of Eggs.
The food value of eggs, as compared with fruits, has been studied by Fresenius, who, after a long series of analysis, states that one ordinary hen's egg contains as much nourishment as 17 ounces of cherries, 20 ounces of grapes, 24 ounces of russet apples, 2 pounds gooseberries and 4 pounds of pears. The same distinguished authority says that 114 pounds of grapes, 127 pounds of apples, 123 pounds of pears and 327 pounds of plums are equal in nourishment to 100 pounds of potatoes.

A fir log was recently taken into a Tacoma (Wash.) mill that was 110 feet long, 83 inches in diameter at the butt and 53 inches at the small end. It was cut into ship plank and contained about 10,000 feet.
